This presentation will introduce you to a relatively new approach to facilitating the acculturation process. Alternation theory is being applied in several large, federally funded Latino youth intervention programs. Alternation theory provides not only a framework for understanding acculturation but also specific ideas for how to design a program. This talk should be of interest to individuals who are working with the second generation of Latino immigrants.